

End of 2022 Newsletter

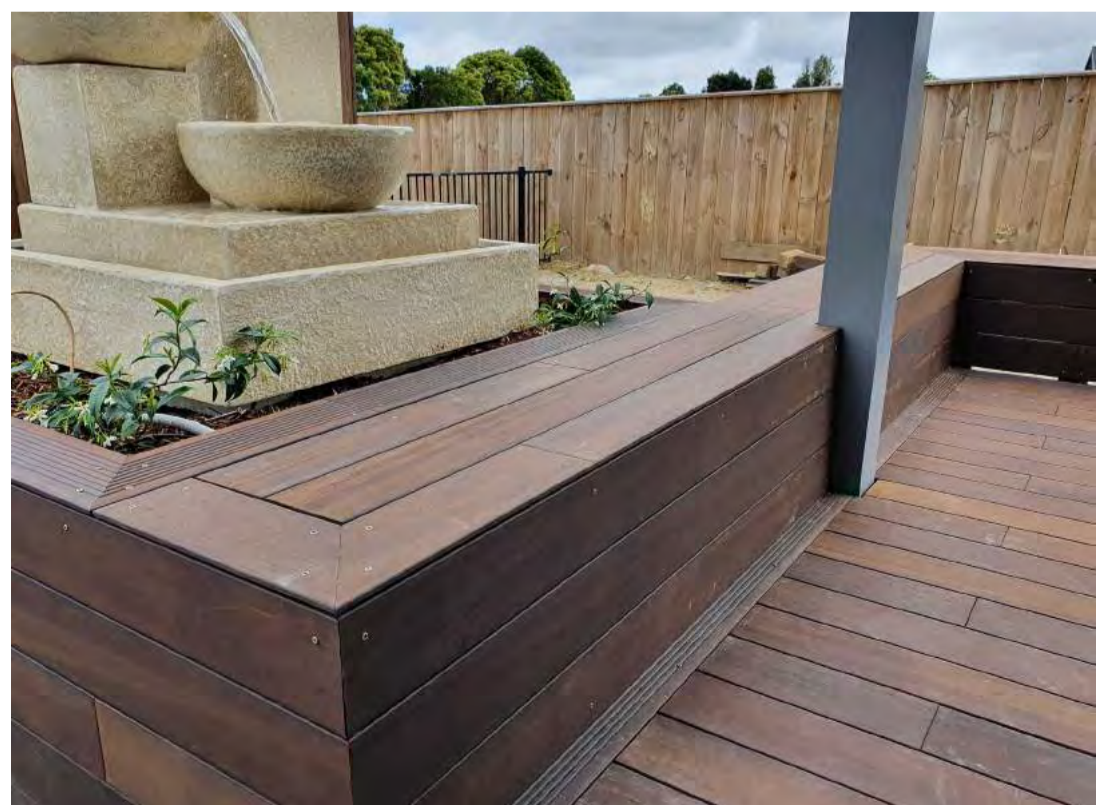

Welcome to our end-of-year “Bamboo update” newsletter. We hope you find some interest in these recent projects, articles and images of how customers are using our beautiful, natural bamboo products in their homes and workplaces around New Zealand.

Decking with seats and raised planters

Here are some photos of a new bamboo x-treme decking installation that includes some lovely seating areas and raised planter boxes (just planted). The owners say these two decks provide a useful extension to their living areas with plenty of room for guest seating and entertaining. Bring on summer BBQ's!

We have lots of bamboo x-treme decking available in stock across our Auckland and Christchurch warehouses now – get in quick for your summer project!

Oiling can make your deck look like new again...

The NZ WOCA oil distributor, Design Denmark shared these photos that a customer provided of a newly oiled bamboo x-treme deck that looked really sharp after being oiled with their “merbau” colour oil.

Some customers prefer to leave their bamboo x-treme decking to naturally weather to a silver-grey colour while others choose to oil it to a desired colour – and there are quite a few colour options to choose from. Oiling is quite a simple process too.

New Bamboo Pendant Lamps in Form 53 Range

We love the look and feel of the new bamboo “Conic” pendant lamps from our friends at Form 53 Gus Leen Design. These stylish pendants are made from our vertical natural bamboo panels.

Bamboo flooring, plus Flexbamboo as a feature

This new home features our compressed coffee bamboo flooring, with Flexbamboo (coffee colour) as a special feature under the kitchen island bench. The Flexbamboo “pops” with the LED strip lighting!

Bamboo X-treme Cladding update

Our bamboo x-treme cladding boards are currently in the middle of being tested, appraised and certified against the NZ Building Code.

Once this is complete (hopefully in the next month or so), we will have all the appropriate documentation, drawings and information for architects, designers, councils etc – and bamboo x-treme cladding will be a viable alternative to the likes of cedar (and around half the price!) and other cladding options.

We’re excited about the future of bamboo x-treme cladding in the NZ market, as it is a successful and sustainable cladding option in Europe and other regions around the world.

Here are some photos of bamboo x-treme cladding used as screens and as a feature-wall on a Wellington home.

Beautiful artwork featuring bamboo panels

Look at this gorgeous artwork created by talented artist, Samwell Warren, who used our bamboo panels as a base or key component for his recent creations. Samwell makes and sells his amazing artwork at art shows and galleries around the country, or as commissions for customers.

Builder feedback on decking

Our team loved receiving this positive feedback from another builder on his first install of our bamboo x-treme decking.

Deck completed. Customers are very happy with it. Great product to work with and awesome service, will recommend it to others looking at building decks. We will be using this for our deck extension next year too.
